

LOCAL FLAVOR

6

Salumi is about history, tradition and Italian cured meats

"My Grandfather was here in 1903 in Pioneer Square doing the same thing I'm doing. Ox tails. Pork cheeks. Cured meats. Sandwiches. Or by the pound. Eat in. Take out. Tuesday through Friday 11 am to 4 pm. Or if you're lucky (Sorry, he's already booked through September 2002) you can reserve the whole place and I'll cater a party just for you," says Armandino Batali. The whole place is all of about 720 square feet. Three tables and a dozen chairs tucked into the Mottman Building at 309 Third Avenue. Don't miss the porchetta – Salumi's signature salute to the pig as served in Italy or Leonetta's Meatballs – Armandino's Mother's original recipe. Now, come vuoi.

The Mottman Building is one of eight major restorations of the Samis Foundation in Pioneer Square. The Samis Foundation, created by the late Sam Israel, is a charitable non-profit, which supports education and wildlife preservation.

An 1893 Corinthian Capital column in the Collins Building.

A Samis Foundation Property
www.samis.com

Pioneer Spirit

and The Mottman Building

Samis Land Company reintroduces the totally restored Mottman Building at 307 Third Avenue South near King Street Station in Pioneer Square. Cool space for architects, design firms, technology savvy companies or any company that doesn't want to work in a box. 6,148 square foot floor plates, divisible for some smaller suites, on four magnificent floors. Includes cat 5 cable, energy efficient lighting, card key access – plus exposed heavy timber beams, and exposed brick walls. For leasing information call your broker or Adam Hasson at Samis 206-957-8753.

Samis welcomes Ebbet's Field Flannels to the Washington Shoe Building

